AN ODD FRIENDSHIP.

A Goose Which Shows Both Affection

and Gratifude.

There is an old saying, "As stupid as a goose," but the following story, well authenticated, of a goose that lived more than a hundred years ago, proves that a stupid goose is capable of one of the highest of virtues, gratitude:

This goose was once saved by the house dog from the attack of a fox, and from that time attached itself in the strongest and most affectionate manner to the dog. It would never quit the kennel, except for the purpose of feeding, and then it would return again immediately. It always sat by the dog, but never presumed to go into the kennel, except in rainy weather. Whenever the dog barked the goose would cackle and run at the person she supposed the dog intended to attack and try to bite his heels. Sometimes she would at-

The goose would not go to roost with the others at night, unless driven by main force; and when, in the morning, she was turned out, she would not pass through the yard gate into the field, but would take up her position at the side of the kennel. At last orders were given that she should berself, she ran about the yard with him dinary, whenever the dog went out of the yard and ran into the street, the goose always accompanied him, contriving to keep up with him by using both feet and wings. In this way, both running and fly ing, she followed him all over the

This extraordinary affection of the cone death, two years after the rescue. While the dog was ill, the goese never quitted him, day or night, even to eat, and it was orders were given that a pan of corn should be selevery day close to the kennel. At this time the goose generally sat inside the kennel, and would not allow anyone to approach it except the person who brought the dog's and her own food.

The end of this faithful bird was melan choly, for, when the dog died she still kept possession of the kennel, and another dog being introduced which in size and color was unhappily deceived, and, on going into the kennel, as usual, the new occupant seized her by the neck and killed her. -Brook-brought them ill luck. It hit the horse, and there was a runaway, which seriously in-

GREAT RECORD OF BAD LUCK.

Communicative Widow Reproaches a Fellow-Traveler.

A weather besten woman of melancholy and discouraged mien sat in front of a drummer in a railroad train, says Texas Siftings. She was clad in rusty mourning and her appearance indicated that her loss was recent. When near Chicago she turned to the drummer and asked:

"What place are we coming to next?" "Chicago, madam." 'Lemme see; that's in Illinois, ain't it?"

'Yes, certainly." "I'd orter know, but I'd forgot I'd bin there about twenty years ago."

loway. I buried my second man out in loway and I ain't been there since. That was eighteen years ago. Went down to South Car-liny from Ioway." "Oh, did you? I've been there."
"You hev? Ever been to a place called

"Yes, and from Illinois I went to-Black Snake Forks? No? Well, Hea "Who was Mr. Dobson?" "My third husband and a right smart eller he was. He had a cousin named

Ben Dagget. Ever come across him?" "You'd known him if you had. Everybody liked him. Me and him were married in Georgy and he is buried nine miles

"Oh, indeed! And do you live in Georgy "Land, no: ain't set foot there for more'n a dozen years. I went from Georgy way up to Minnesoty, and I met Tom Hixon

"Yes: him and me lived there most a year after we were married, then a blamed old white mule we had kickled Tom so under the snow up near St. Paul and sold off and went out to Kansas, near Atchison, and tuk up a quarter section of land jinin

a real smart man's named Dill." "And you-"Ves I married Dill and he tuk chills and fever 'fore three months and left me a widder 'fore the year was out."

"I tell you, I've had mighty bad luck." "That's what I have. There was Ben Barber; after me and him was married out in Californy we got along splendid and was making money fast, when all of a sudden Ben goes head first down a 300 foot shaft, and of course I was a widder 'fore the poor man struck bottom." "Then you left California?" "Yes; I stayed there eight or ten months and then Bob he wanted to-

"Oh Bob White He was Ben's partner. and he never give no peace till I married him. He is buried in the Black Hills." "Great Caesar!" cried the drummer. 'Do you make a business of going around country burying husbands? yes and said in keen rebuke.

"That's a purty way to talk to a lone widder that's got her husband's cawpee in a baggage car ahead a takin' him out to Dakoty to lay him aside his other kin-folks. You'd ort to be 'shamed to be so Little Japanese girls frequently do, like their shoes. And the "pokkuri" the young ladies wear are three or more inches high.
